

The Yuka app is a free mobile application that allows users to scan the barcodes of food and personal care products to assess their health impact. It provides a rating system that evaluates how healthy a product is, with scores ranging from "Bad" to "Excellent". Originally launched in France in 2017, Yuka has gained over 55 million users and is available in several countries, including the US and Canada. Additionally, the app offers recommendations for healthier alternatives when a product scores poorly.
